

An award-winning documentary that takes a provocative look at morality & politics in Holland.
Written, produced & directed by Jonathan Blank

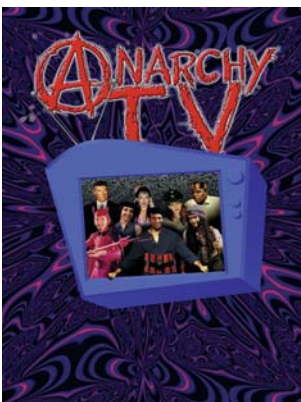

CHICAGO SUN-TIMES "A seductive documentary about Holland, which permits prostitution, abortion, pornography and marijuana use, has banned capital punishment and handguns, and has the lowest prison rate in the world, not to mention low rates of crime, abortion, teen pregnancy and drug deaths. The movie argues that many laws governing personal behavior cause more crime than they prevent." --Roger Ebert

The Washington Post "Blank's intriguing documentary, Sex, Drugs & Democracy offers an uncensored tour of the nether parts of the Netherlands. The sources, articulate and well pedigreed, are convincing." --Rita Kempley

The New York Times "Provocative...The film marshals impressive statistics to suggest that a climate of freedom and tolerance reduces crime and addiction." --Stephen Holden

Billboard "This indie film, which had a successful art-house run, spotlights Holland, where nothing seems taboo...It's a compelling picture of tolerance. The country's history of democracy goes well beyond the more puritanical mores of other countries that fancy themselves liberal. Everyone will come away with a broader perspective on the human condition." --Catherine Olson

THE ARIZONA REPUBLIC "★★★★ (4 Stars) The movie challenges people to examine their freedoms and limitations." --Bob Fenster

An original comedy
Written, produced & directed by Jonathan Blank

KRON-TV "A wild, crazy and twisted comedy!" --Jan Wahl

EFILMCRTIC.COM "★★★★ (4 stars) Finally, something good on TV...It has more laughs than some big screen successes, and contains off color humor that works better than any "American Pie" film." --Charles Tatum

Wired for Entertainment "Keeping the spirit of Frank Zappa alive!" --Meredith Ducote

Moving Pictures "Young people everywhere are really going to vibe on the movie." --Geoffrey Macnab

The Jacksonville Film Journal "Jonathan Blank and Philip Craft's script is funny, but it's the performances that make this film stand out. Alan Thicke is excellent as the evil televangelist and his character is not too over the top while still being somewhat manic. The entire Zappa clan appears here and add to the proof that they should be due for some institutionalization soon (and I mean that in a good way). Full of music and whacked out performances, Anarchy TV turns the establishment on its ear with a biting screenplay and scathing satire." --Brian Matherly

a humorous look at the baseball memorabilia collecting frenzy
Written, produced & directed by Jonathan Blank

Newsday "★★★★ (3 1/2 stars)...Producer-director Jonathan Blank's fascinating investigation of the multibillion-dollar baseball memorabilia business. "Collecting America" is first-rate reporting and an absorbing mix of interviews with industry entrepreneurs, execs, dealers, players, fans and sportswriters, along with footage of conventions and ball games." --Joseph Gelmis

VIDEO Magazine "Blank's funny, informative documentary is fast-paced, beautifully combining interviews with dealers, fans, market analysts and Hall-of-Famers. It's exceptionally well edited and even handed." --Bruce Eder

THE HARBUS NEWS HARVARD BUSINESS SCHOOL "A fascinating, provocative documentary which provides a humorous view of how a childhood hobby has grown into a $10 billion market." --Ian Rowe
